On the Horizon

Got to Be NC Festival set for May 20-22

Mark your calendar for May 20-22 for the Got to Be NC Festival at the State Fairgrounds in Raleigh.

This marks the fourth year for the event that features antique tractors in every popular color scheme, delicious North Carolina food and wine, fiber crafts and materials, music and carnival rides and games.

The festival is currently accepting applications for vendors. Interested vendors can go to www.ncagfest.com/ and click on the Vendor Application link in the left side column.

Tractor owners can also register to show by clicking on the Antique Equipment Registration link at the above web site.

Festival hours are 9 a.m. to midnight Friday and Saturday and 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday.

With gas prices on the rise, NCD&CS gas pump inspectors responding to lots of calls

With gas prices above or nearing $3 a gallon across North Carolina, drivers are paying closer attention to whether they are getting what they pay for.

The 24 inspectors with the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services who inspect gas pumps statewide are also paying close attention.

"Complaints about gas pumps have been on the increase in recent weeks," said Jerry Butler, who oversees the NCD&CS Standards Division's gas pump inspection program. "Normally this time of year we get few complaints, but with the rising prices, we have had more calls."

Department inspectors routinely inspect gas pumps at the nearly 7,000 stations across the state to be sure the pumps are operating correctly and are dispensing a gallon of gas for each gallon purchased. In total, there are about 120,000 individual pumps statewide that must be checked. Inspectors also respond to consumer complaints.

Inspectors place a sticker, like the one shown above, on a gas pump once it has passed inspection. The inspector will punch a hole on the appropriate letter denoting the month the pump was inspected. Consumers can find the Standards Division phone number on the sticker in the event they need to report a problem with a pump.

"Pumps that are not operating correctly cost consumers and businesses money, and in today's economy, people are carefully watching what they spend," Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler said. "Our goal is to ensure fairness in these business transactions."

An inspection begins with an inspector removing the bottom front panel of a pump to check for signs of leaks, to make sure meters are sealed and have not been tampered with and to check for a safety cut-off switch. Inspectors have trucks equipped with test cans that are certified accurate for volume. Gas is pumped into the test cans and the volume reading on the can is compared to a reading on the pump. If both the pump

NCD&CS hosts three farmers market manager workshops

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services' popular farmers market manager workshops are returning with one-day sessions scheduled in February and March for Raleigh, Elizabeth City and Monroe.

The workshops, geared towards market managers and their board members, will cover such topics as marketing to your customers, using Women Infant and Children vouchers at the market, food safety at the market and how to go about finding and applying for grants. In addition, a market manager panel will also share ideas on how to market your farmers market in the off season and retain customer loyalty.

All workshops will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. Following is the workshop schedule:

■ Feb. 11 at the Gov. James G.

Martin Building, State Fairgrounds

■ March 11 at the Pasquotank Cooperative Extension Building, Elizabeth City

■ March 18 at the Union County Agriculture Services Center, Monroe

"Statewide, we have seen strong growth and interest in local and regional farmers markets, which offer great opportunities for farmers to sell their products directly to the consumer," said Agriculture Commissioner

From the tractor by Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler

The 2011 legislative session is now under way in Raleigh, with legislators having returned in late January. We know it is going to be a challenging session because of the budget. I wish the news was better, but lawmakers have tough decisions ahead of them.

It is not going to be easy to cut $3.5 billion from the state budget. There has already been a lot of talk debating the size and scope of government, and there will be plenty more to follow. I plan to work closely with the legislature and the governor to make sure they fully understand the work and services of the department.

As many of our longtime readers know, I am a strong advocate for the department and the services we provide. I was elected to represent the needs of the farming community in the state and to oversee the regulatory duties of our department.

I want to make sure everyone understands that when I talk about protecting our budget, I am also talking about protecting you the consumer, you the farmer and you the agribusiness owner.

I can give you a couple of specific examples of this. In 2010, inspectors with our Meat and Poultry Inspection Division oversaw inspection of 360 million pounds of meat and poultry products. Of that, a total of 23 tons of product were condemned as unsafe and removed from the marketplace. Those same inspectors also conducted 500 investigations into illegal slaughter and processing operations and detained more than a ton of misbranded or adulterated meat products.

Food safety is one of the top priorities of the department and as a parent and grandparent, I am happy that we have folks focused on ensuring safe food products, whether they are our Meat and Poultry inspectors, our Food and Drug inspectors or our Veterinary staff.

and test-can reading are the same and no other problems are found, the pump passes inspection and receives an official NCDA&CS label noting the month and year the pump was inspected. Inspections occur about every 18 months or when the department receives a complaint.

If the volumes don’t match or if other issues are found with a pump, then it fails inspection and can be locked until the problem is corrected, Butler said. Stations contact the Standards Division once repairs have been made to dispensers, and inspectors go back out to check the pumps again. The gas pumped into the containers on the Standards truck is returned to the main storage gas tanks.

On average, approval of gas pumps runs around 90 percent. “To date this year, we have tested 81,695 dispensers and rejected 9,076, for an 89 percent approval rate,” Butler said. “Calibration issues involving the amount of fuel dispensed tend to represent about 2 to 5 percent of the problems we find on day-to-day inspections. The remaining problems involve faulty display lights, credit or debit card readers, tape dispensers or other items.

“One thing people think we have control over, but don’t, is the price for a gallon of gas,” Butler said. “Whenever prices go up, we see a spike in phone calls, including complaints about prices, but that does not typically equate to us finding more problems at the pump.”

If consumers think they have encountered a faulty pump, they can report it to the Standards Division at (919) 733-3313.

Best Dish in N.C. contest expands with focus on regional specialties

The Best Dish in North Carolina restaurant contest is expanding this year as it continues to recognize the best menu items created by chefs featuring local products and ingredients.

For the first time in the contest’s six-year history, it will be divided into three regions: Western, Piedmont and Eastern (see map below). Each region will have 10 finalists (five in casual dining and five in fine dining).

“We saw a need to split into three regions to highlight the menu diversity throughout our state,” said Tim Parrish, contest coordinator and foodservice marketing specialist with the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

The contest also will place more emphasis on the overall creativity of entries.

“Chefs can now focus on what they do best – create dishes that feature local N.C. products,” said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

With the contest’s focus redefined, the department has established new judging criteria. They include the overall use of N.C. products and ingredients in the entry; the depth of the farm-to-table connection of each entry; creativity in using local ingredients in the dish’s preparation; originality and uniqueness of entries; and overall appeal and value.

The core mission of Best Dish hasn’t changed, Parrish said. “We still want to highlight the skill and creativity of North Carolina chefs while showcasing the food products grown and processed in North Carolina,” he said. “It encourages consumers to dine at restaurants that serve and feature local products on their menus, which in turn, helps the restaurants and farmers involved.”

Entry deadline is March 31. Visit www.bestdishnc.com for contest information and applications.

The contest is sponsored by the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and Our State magazine.

Corn growers to hold referendum Feb. 22

North Carolina corn growers will vote Feb. 22 on a six-year continuation of their commodity assessment program.

The Board of Directors of the Corn Growers Association of North Carolina is asking that farmers assess themselves at a rate of 3/4 cent per bushel on all corn marketed in North Carolina.

The campaign to continue an assessment was announced on Jan. 13 by CGANC President Darren Armstrong at the Joint Commodities Conference of Corn, Cotton, Soybeans and Small Grain Producers in New Bern. Armstrong urged growers to continue the assessment program, which is administered by the association. “As farmers we must stay united and work together to survive in the farming industry,” Armstrong said.

The association is involved in the following areas: international and domestic marketing; research and education; grants to cooperative extension offices; and legislation that will be helpful to corn growers and other farmers. A 24-member Board of Directors, covering all corn-producing areas of North Carolina, governs the organization’s activities. This board also gives support to issues of a local nature that members believe will benefit farmers.

Growers may vote at local cooperative extension offices from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. All farmers currently engaged in the production of corn, including tenants, sharecroppers or other persons sharing in the production of corn or income from corn, are eligible to vote. A two-thirds favorable vote is required to carry the referendum as authorized by Article 50, Chapter 106 of North Carolina General Statutes.

If approved, the assessment shall be collected by the first handler or purchaser of the commodity from the producer, and remitted to the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, which forwards the proceeds to the association. Any corn grower may get a refund of levied assessments from the Corn Growers Association of North Carolina. A request for a refund should be made within 30 days from the date on which the assessment is collected.

Aquaculture conference will be Feb. 11&12

The 23rd annual N.C. Aquaculture Development Conference will be held Feb. 11 and 12 at the Sheraton Atlantic Beach Oceanfront Hotel in Atlantic Beach.

The conference includes presentations and workshops featuring local and national aquaculture leaders. A variety of topics will be discussed, ranging from global marketing and disease management to new technology and research updates.

The event also will feature a trade show, an Aqua-Food Fest and other networking opportunities.

On Feb. 10, attendees can participate in a self-guided tour of aquaculture farms and research facilities in Wallace, Currie and Wrightsville Beach. The N.C. Shellfish Growers Association will hold its annual meeting following the final session on Feb. 12.

Guest speakers include David Alves, fishery management specialist with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration; Tom Ellis, agricultural member of the N.C. Environmental Management Commission; Andy Goodwin, professor at the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff; Steven Hudlund, editor of SeafoodSource.com; and Craig Watson, director and research coordinator for the Tropical Aquaculture Laboratory in Florida.

The conference is sponsored by the N.C. Aquaculture Association, N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, N.C. Farm Bureau Federation, N.C. Sea Grant Program, N.C. Shellfish Growers Association, N.C. Small Business and Technology Development Center, N.C. State’s College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, Waterlife Design Group, Southern Aquaculture Supply and Carolina Classics Catfish Inc.

The conference brings together current and prospective fish farmers, regulatory agencies and researchers to exchange information and ideas. For more details and registration information, go to www.ncaquaculture.org.

Agritourism conference to be held Feb. 17 & 18

The Fifth Annual Agritourism Networking Association Winter Conference will be held Feb. 17 and 18 at the Little River Golf and Resort near Carthage. The conference is designed for agritourism entrepreneurs and others who may be interested in starting an agritourism venture and those who support rural tourism in North Carolina.

“Agritourism opportunities continue to grow in North Carolina, to the benefit of farm families, local communities and North Carolina’s economy,” said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. “When it comes to starting an agritourism venture, there is no one-size-fits-all approach, so events such as this conference give folks an opportunity to learn more about the many different types of agritourism adventures in the state.”

Optional mid-afternoon farm tours will be held Feb. 17, with a reception to follow. Seven workshops will be held Feb. 18, focusing on marketing the local food movement, successfully marketing your niche farm products, success with media along with information sessions on community supported agriculture ventures and successful agritourism farm shops and stores.

“This conference allows participants plenty of time to network and to ask questions of presenters and other agritourism operators,” said Martha Glass, agritourism manager at the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

Early registration by Feb. 3 is $70 for ANA members, $85 for non-members and $60 for cooperative extension staff. The registration fee increases to $100 after Feb. 3.

For more information or a registration form, go to www.ncagr.gov/agritourism, or call Martha Glass at (919) 707-3120.

Workshops

Steve Troxler. “We want to help these markets thrive, and these workshops provide good material and ideas for market managers and leaders.”

Cost for the Raleigh workshop is $20, and covers materials and lunch. Pre-registration is required. The deadline is Feb. 4 for the February workshop, and registration will open in early February for the March events.

For more information, contact Kevin Hardison at (919) 707-3123 or at kevin.hardison@ncagr.gov or Annette Dunlap at (919) 707-3117 or annette.dunlap@ncagr.gov.

Budget

Each one of these divisions has a specific role to play in food safety in this state from the farm, to the processing facility and to the store shelf.

Other areas where we are working on your behalf are at gas pumps and grocery stores. Our Standards Division examines around 120,000 fuel dispensers statewide. In 2010, we required corrective action on more than 9,000 dispensers. In addition, we issued more than $74,000 in penalties for excessive price scanner errors at grocery stores and other retailers.

The work of these inspectors helped ensure the accuracy of price scanners and gas pumps for consumers. And trust me, people want to be sure they are getting what they pay for.

We are working to protect our environment through the soil testing work of our Agronomic Division. This saves farmers and homeowners money and helps ensure only the right amounts of nutrients are being added to the soil. Our soil lab analyzes more than 300,000 samples annually.

Overall the department’s budget is less than three-tenths of one percent of the total state budget, and the services we provide cost North Carolinians less than 2 cents a day. I think that is a bargain when I think about all the ways our services impact people’s lives.

Since 2000, we have cut 180 positions, a reduction of more than 10 percent. Another 47 positions are now paid for with receipts instead of tax dollars. This at the same time the overall state budget grew by 45 percent.

I believe the services we provide are critical to the wellbeing of our residents, our farm economy and even our state’s economy.

Agriculture remains the leading industry in the state, generating $74 billion for the economy and employing 700,000 people.

Ensuring food safety is critical for public health, but it also critical to the health of the ag economy. We have seen countless examples in the past few years where a food recall has been devastating for all farmers producing that same food product, whether there was a direct link to the recalled product or not.

I believe we need to invest in agriculture through marketing and promotions so it remains an economic engine for the state.

I hope as you read this and think about the way the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services impacts your lives, you will agree with me that these are programs and services worth supporting.

I plan to make my case to legislators, but I know I will not be alone.

2010 State Fair winning recipes

Pork and Cheese Empanadas wins Tarheel Pork Challenge

Domino Ireland of Raleigh took home the blue ribbon in the Tarheel Pork Challenge at the N.C. State Fair. His winning recipe, Pork and Cheese Empanadas, earned him $200 in the contest, which was sponsored by the N.C. Pork Council.

Recipes had to serve four to six people and have at least 4 ounces of pork per serving. Judging was based on taste appeal, appearance, originality of recipe and ease of preparation.

The winning recipe follows:

Pork and Cheese Empanadas

- 1 14-ounce package frozen puff pastry
- 12 ounces hot ground sausage
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 medium Vidalia onion, chopped
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 pound pork loin, cubed (3/8 inch)
- 1 tablespoon thyme

- 1 tablespoon ground cumin
- ½ teaspoon hot chili powder
- 1/3 cup chopped tomato
- 8 slices of bacon cooked and crumbled
- 1 cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Thaw pastry according to the instructions on the package. In a large skillet, heat sausage, breaking up until brown, drain fat and set aside in a separate container. In same skillet, heat olive oil, add the onion and garlic. Cook over medium heat until the onion starts to become translucent.

Add the cubed pork loin. Cook until meat is no longer pink, about 8 minutes. Drain off any fat and liquid that accumulates. Add back in the sausage, thyme, cumin, hot chili powder and chopped tomato and continue to cook, stirring for another four or five minutes, allowing the flavors to combine. Let mixture cool for about 10 to 15 minutes.

Working with half the package of pastry at a time, roll it out to a 12-inch square. With a sharp knife or pizza wheel, cut the pastry into quarters. In the center of each square, place about ¼ cup of the meat mixture into a neat pile away from the edges of the dough.

On top of this, sprinkle about 1 tablespoon of the cheese and sprinkle of bacon. Wet the edges of the square dough using a rolled paper towel or your finger then carefully fold in half diagonally, pressing the edges down firmly so that they stick together. Seal shut by pressing with a fork. Place on a cookie sheet.

Repeat with the remaining dough and filling ingredients. Bake empanadas for 18 to 20 minutes or until puffed and lightly browned. Remove from oven and let cool slightly before serving either hot or at room temperature.

Torte wins apple cooking contest

An Apple, Sausage and Cheddar Torte won first place in the N.C. Apple Growers Association recipe contest at the N.C. State Fair, earning Lisa Raschke of Raleigh $200.

Contestants had to create a non-dessert appetizer, casserole, stir fry, salad, sandwich or main dish using at least two cups of North Carolina-grown apples. Recipes were judged on taste, appearance and creativity.

The winning recipe follows:

Apple, Sausage and Cheddar Torte

by Lisa Raschke

- 1 ready-made pie crust
- 2 cups N.C. apples, sliced and peeled (use a flavorful apple such as Pink Lady, Granny Smith or Honeycrisp)

- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ¾ pound sweet Italian or breakfast sausage (bulk or removed from casings)
- 2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
- 1 cup ricotta cheese
- 4 eggs

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Place pie crust in 9-inch pie pan and bake 7 to 9 minutes or until light golden brown. Remove from oven and let cool. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees.

Melt butter in a large skillet on medium heat. Add the apples, onions, sugar and cinnamon, and sauté until tender, about 5 minutes. Transfer mixture to a separate bowl. Increase the heat to medium high and add sausage. Saute until browned, about 7-10 minutes, breaking the meat up as it is cooking. Remove from heat, draining excess grease onto a paper towel-lined dish.

In a medium sized bowl, mix together the cheeses and eggs.

Place sausage on bottom of pre-baked pie crust. Add the cooked apple onion mixture over the sausage. Pour the cheese egg mixture over the apple mixture and spread it so it evenly covers the pie.

Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes, until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Let stand for 10 minutes before serving. Serves 8-10.
